2. Transferring domain names

When you transfer a domain name this can mean transfer of ownership and/or transfer to a different registrar. Regardless of which scenario the process is essentially the same.

The first step will be to make preparations for the transfer. This will include turning off domain locking and acquiring the EPP Key. The second step will be to contact one or both registrars so that you can communicate to them what is transpiring. The registrars will handle the literal transfer of the name.

If you are transferring due to a purchase you may have to provide a copy of the signed domain purchase agreement. It is also very likely the registrar will have to verify the transfer with the existing owner. Keep in mind that a registrar might not transfer a domain within 60 days after registrant information has been changed.

Once the transfer is complete you will want to go through each step for the entire domain setup procedure. You can find our web page about domain setup at this URL:
